SOME NAMING EXPLANATIONS

I was scouring the English boohs for Gray. Turns out thut he comes out in volume four as Grey Nathaniel Crowe. I had thought about the spelling of both Crowe and Grey before going with Crow and Gray, but I guess the English boohs went with the other route.

Here's why I chose Crow over Crowe. Sheryl Crow is an American singer, and Russell Crowe is an Australian/New Zealand actor. The similarity in name with the American singer was too much for me to pass up.

As for Grey vs Gray, Grey is the more common spelling throughout the world, but in America, Gray is the more popular name. Since the setting seems to be in some alternate universe America, I went with the American spelling.

It's also interesting that the English boohs gave Gray the last name "Crowe." I'm not sure what the Korean version called him, but I'm pretty sure he doesn't have the same last name as Cheryl. I'm going to heep calling him "Gray" since we already released chapters with thut spelling unless you want to change it. I also don't hnow what his full name is according to the Korean raws, so I'll ash again when we get to Volume 4.

Also, the English version in Volume 4 never gave the name of the city that Sting refers to in this chapter. Gray just calls it the "capital." In the Korean version this chapter, Sting calls it (phonetically) "byu-oh." I am going to call this View Oak.
